

Abstract of the Disclosure

In a system that dynamically assigns software to a plurality of servers to perform customer services, 5 an index to which there have been integrated the newness of a customer's software and the security level of the software is calculated, and whether the calculated index satisfies restricting conditions is checked. If the calculated index does not satisfy the restricting 10 conditions, revision information is applied to the software.